SOCIAL REGISTRIES FOR SOCIAL PROTECTION

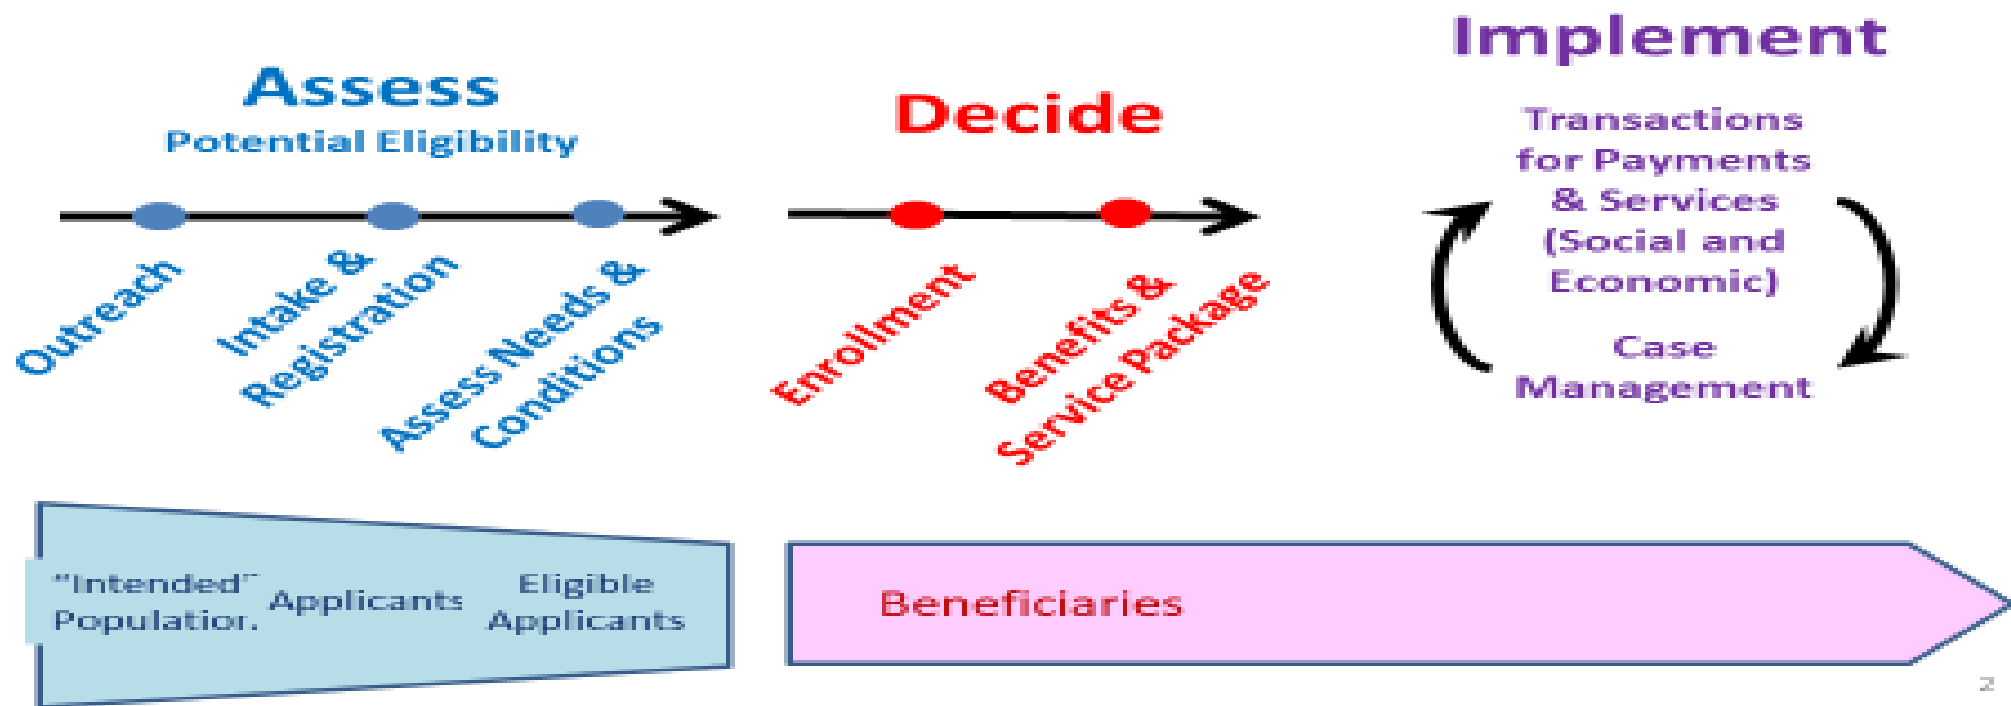

Introduction

- Many countries provide diverse social benefits and services to mitigate on different needs of their populations.
- Benefits - cash transfers (conditional or unconditional) or in-kind benefits
- Other benefits - social services for children, youth, parents, or the elderly, PWDs including labor market programmes

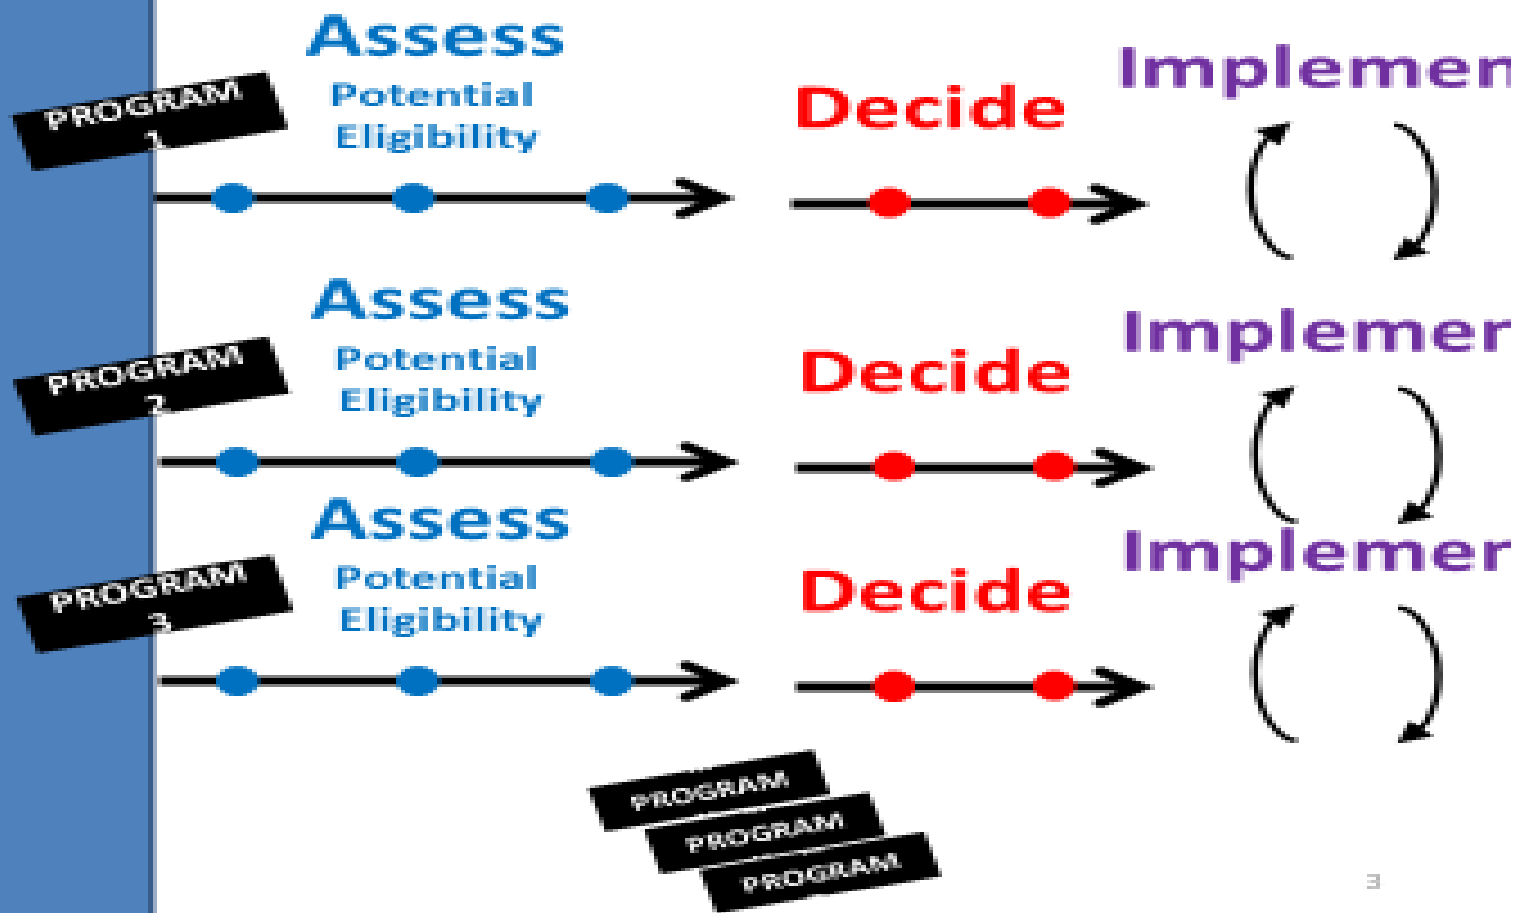

Although social programs seem quite different, most pass through similar implementation phases

WHY FOR SOCIAL REGISTRIES?

- Programs may have overlapping activities
- Programs may collect data from persons that live in households already registered by another program
- Community fatigue
- Inefficient use of resources
- Lack of standardized data

Therefore:

- As social protection coverage grows, efficiency gains can be achieved by integrating and harmonizing data collection efforts
- The SR has potential to support expansion and effective delivery of social protection programs
- The SR can be used to expand and inform universal social protection policies

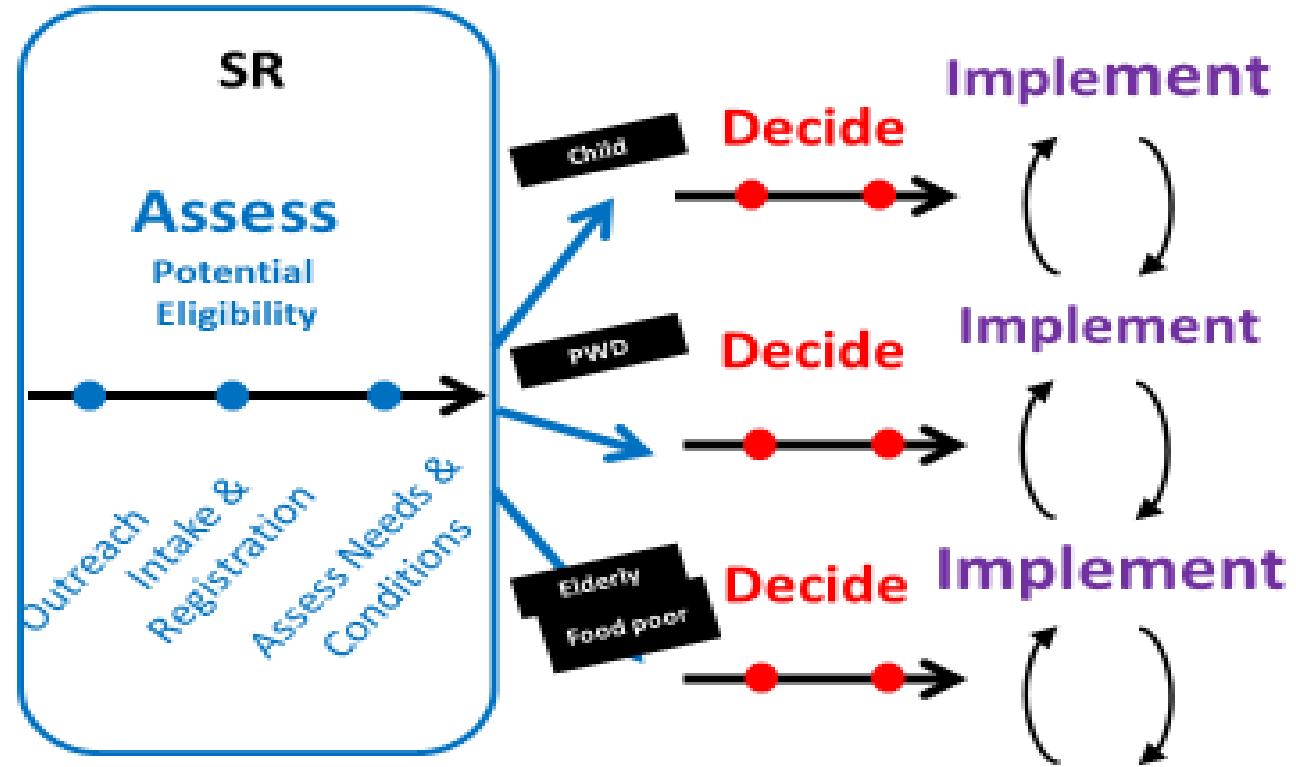

Opportunity to integrate registration activities as social protection coverage expands.

DEFINING SOCIAL REGISTRIES

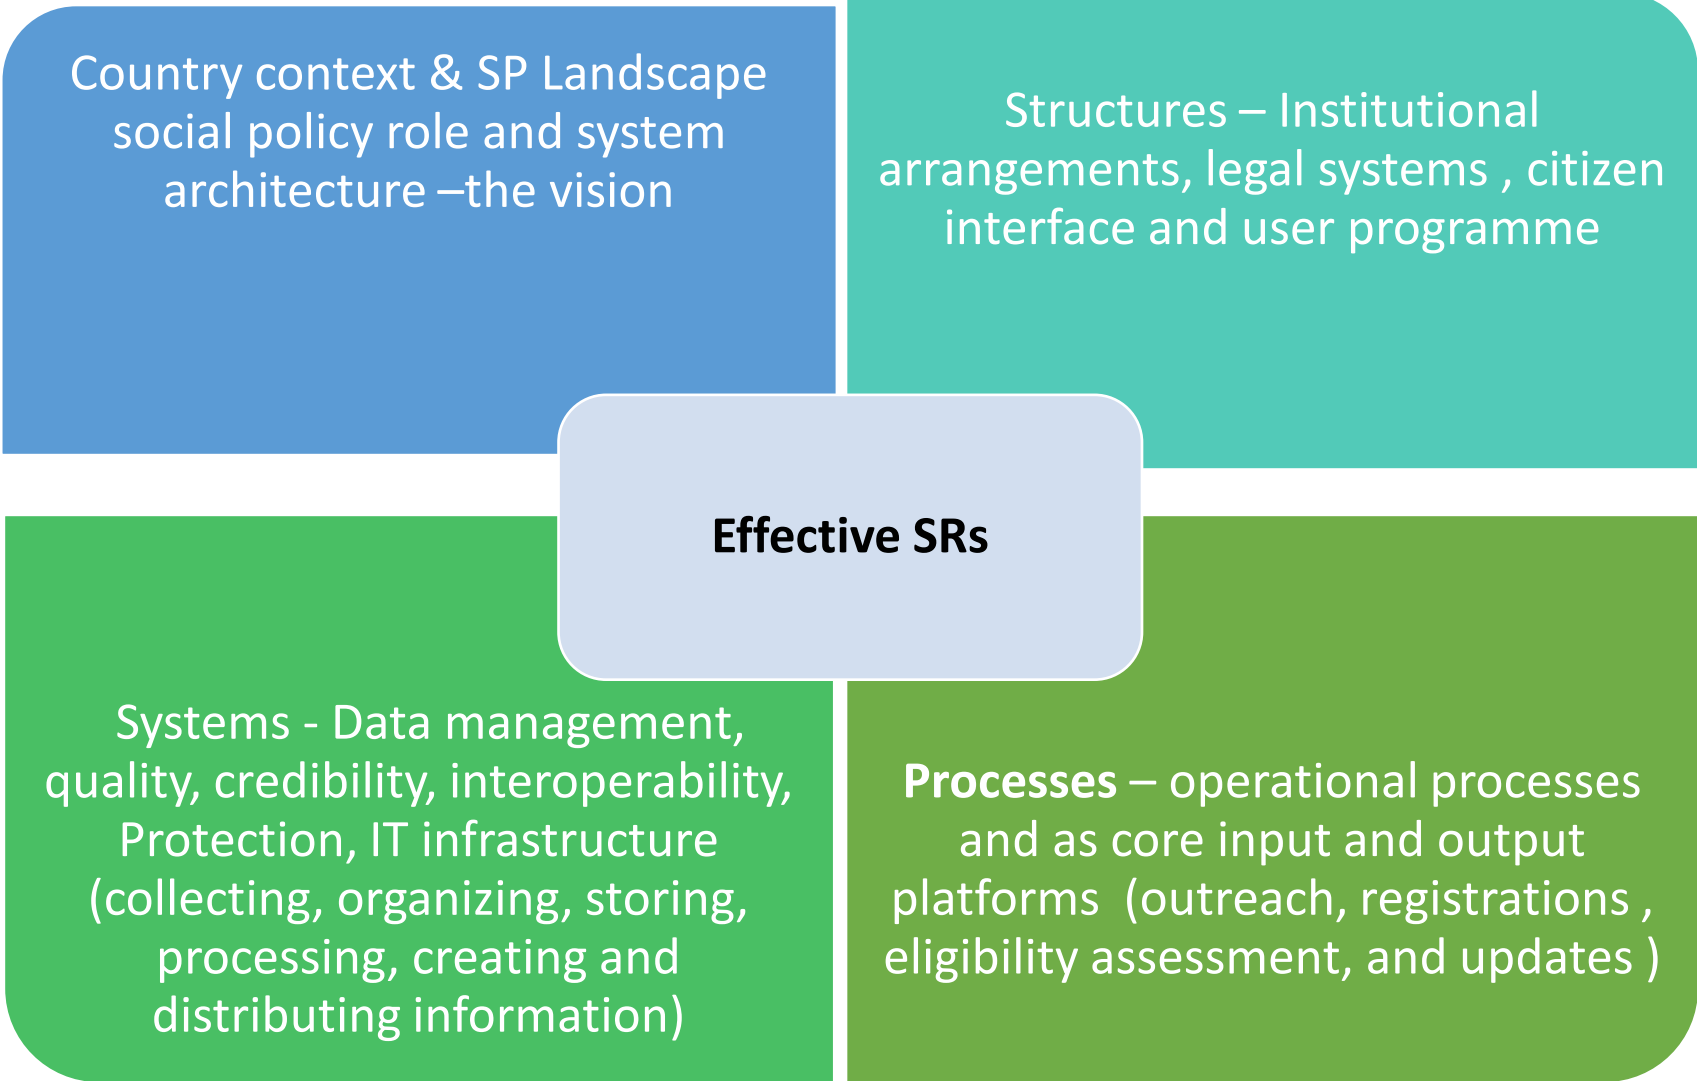

Definition
Information systems that support outreach, intake, registration, and determination of potential eligibility for one or more social programs (Gateway for all potential beneficiaries of all programs) promotes social policy decisions on inclusion.

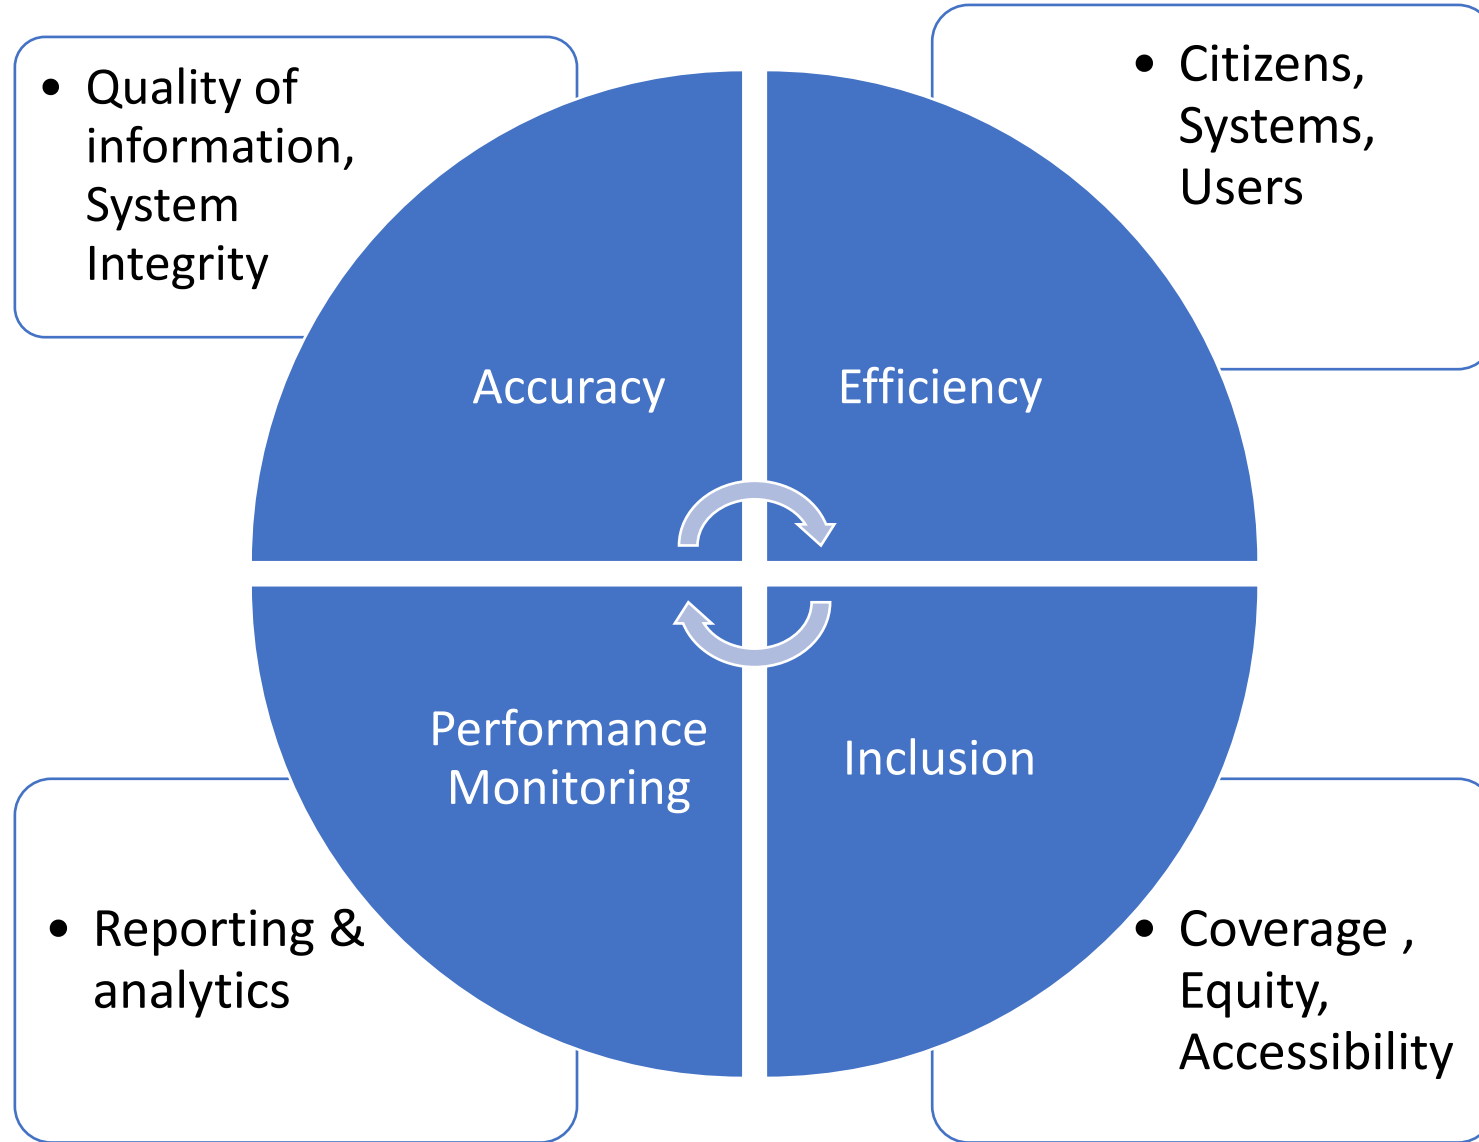

.... and an operational role, as information systems, managing flow of information in the sector
